Message from the Editors

This first issue of volume seven of The International Arab Journal of Information Technology (IAJIT), 2010, includes 15 research papers on various topics in information technology. This journal started in July 2003, and the first issue was published in 2004.

The editors of this journal are very pleased with the high quality of the research papers that have appeared in previous issues as well as the timely publishing of accepted papers. The editors are equally pleased with the recognition of the Journal from many of the world's well known companies in information technology for businesses, professionals, databases and academic research. This recognition came from the fact that this journal has been indexed by more than 10 leading companies in these areas.

The editors believe that this journal is one of the top leading journals in the Arab world in information technology and academic research and will work hard to make it well known worldwide. They hope that this issue will prove to be a timely and valuable reference to researchers in this field.

The editorial board would like to thank Dr. Emad Abuelrub, the Editor-in-Chief, for his hard work and vision for this remarkable achievement.
